Places for People continues to grow

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

2014 was a big year for Places for People, with the non-profit housing corporation opening its third rental property.

The organization held its annual general meeting at Carnarvon's Zion United Church on Nov. 14 and president Max Ward revisited the project, which renovated a house on Minden's Newcastle Street into an affordable rental unit.

"The open house itself was a huge success," said Ward of the March event, noting it garnered the attention of CTV.

Tenants moved in April 1.

A rent supplement from the Kawartha Lakes-Haliburton Housing Corporation came in handy when the tenants suffered a vehicle collision, interrupting their employment for a number of weeks.

August also saw a tenant from Places for People's Carnarvon building achieve her goal of being able to afford her own home.

There was a smooth transition of new tenants into the space, meaning no interruption in rent for the corporation.

Rent is used to pay mortgages and utilities and each month, five per cent of tenants' rent is put into a trust fund for them to access.

As outgoing board member and chairman of the tenant selection committee Norris Turner noted, this year three families

Less severe winter expected

David Phillips tells the Times he's not expecting a repeat of last year's weather

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

This winter should not be as severe as the frigid, snowy winter Haliburton County residents and many Canadians experienced last year.

Haliburtonians and most Ontarians woke up to a blanket of snow Monday morning, with five to 10 centimetres of the stuff falling.

"This is kind of the first test for us this year," David Phillips, senior climatologist with Environment Canada, told the Times on Nov. 17. "We're seeing, provincewide, more snow than we've had."

While the county had received some snow in days prior, Monday marked the first substantial snowfall of the season for much of the province.

"The winds are going to be very strong," Phillips said, explaining more snow and accompanying snow squalls were expected during the first few days of the week. "As they move away, the cold air is going move in."

The snow falling Monday came from what Phillips referred to as the lake effect engine, cooler atmospheric conditions, sweeping across warmer lakes and picking up water drew on their trust funds.

"Folks living close to the line can face financial disaster while they wait for income replacement," Turner said. "This is where our tenant trust funds can really make a difference."

For the former tenant who moved into her own home, she was able to access her untouched trust fund of nearly $2,000 to help with her down-payment.

Places for People owns and operates three buildings – in Minden, Carnarvon and Haliburton Village – containing five rental units. Collectively the buildings are worth nearly $500,000 (that's paid, not market value) and the corporation is carrying some $297,000 of long-term debt.

It brought in some $113,000 this year from a variety of sources, including raffles, its annual Haliburton Hootenanny concert and its largest fundraiser, the Highland Yard.

Income from the road race, which Places for People took over in 2012, was more than $10,000.

While registration was down – there were 266 runners this year – revenues were up.

Organizer Jack Russel attributed the drop in participation to the fact that this year, for the first time, an entrance fee was collected for the two-kilometre event, which in the past was entered by donation.

He chalked the increased revenue up to increased registration fees and pledges from runners.

For next year's race, Russel said a family flat rate for the two-kilometre event will be explored, as will prizes for runners with the highest pledges, hopefully encouraging more pledges.

Places for People is also planning a new route for the run, one that will hopefully cause fewer complications with traffic.

Other sources of revenue include grants from the United Church of Canada and the Haliburton County Development Corporation.

"We did really well in donations this year," said board member and founder Fay Martin. Donations totalled more than $47,000.

As Ward pointed out, Places for People, which has no base government funding for its operations, has become a replicable model and members have given presentations at a health communities symposium and annual Ontario Non-Profit Housing Association conference.

The corporation has also been asked by the Rural Ontario Institute to start a blog.

Outgoing board member Norris Turner was recognized for his contributions, Russel presenting him with a golden spade.

"As a spade turns soil for plants to grow, Norris does the same for the tenants," Russel said.

Russel, Ward, Martin along with Adele Espina, Gordon Forbes, Steve Kauffeldt, Gerry Moraal and Fred Phipps were elected to the board for the upcoming year.

Places for People is looking for recommendations for three more board members to bring its complement up to 11.

Flippin' Fiddler brings Christmas cheer

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

The musician known as the Flippin' Fiddler will somersault his way into Minden for a concert on Dec. 5.

Canadian fiddle champion Scott Woods and his band will bring some toe-tapping takes on Yuletide classics to the gym at Archie Stouffer Elementary School.

"I was the youngest of four kids who all played fiddle," Woods told the Times. "It was kind of in my genes that I was going to play."

Woods's father played fiddle also, starting a dance orchestra at just 12 years old. The pianist in that orchestra would eventually become Woods's mother.

Starting lessons at the age of four, Woods was classically trained. Playing jigs and fiddle tunes came as a reward for practising.

"Dad would say, 'You have to practise your technique,'" Woods said. "That was always inspiration."

From Fergus, Ont., his childhood was spent playing the ubiquitous fiddle competitions once held throughout the province.

"There was a fiddle contest pretty much every weekend," Woods said, recalling the friendships he made with other fiddlers. "You'd learn tunes from each other. You'd run around and play and do stuff together."

It was during novelty fiddling components, or "trick and fancy" contests, that Woods developed what would become his signature move.

"You could basically do anything you wanted with the fiddle," Woods explained.

Some fiddlers would play behind their heads, or underneath their legs, tricks that Woods has in his quiver.

However, he adopted a slightly more acrobatic flourish – doing a running somersault, fiddling all the while.

"I haven't broken any bones or any instruments," Woods said, admitting he's taken out a music stand or two.

He also plays while walking on a barrel.

Woods has earned a plethora of prizes over the years, including winning the Canadian Open Fiddle Contest and the Canadian Grand Masters Fiddling Championships, each two times.

His Christmas tour will feature a band of consummate performers, including 14-year-old triple-threat Amanda MacInnis, who sings, fiddles and step-dances.

Woods switches up his Christmas show every year.

"I've always been of the mind you need to give the audience something new," he said.

Some carols feature Don-Messer-style breakdowns.

"You don't have to be a fiddle fan," Woods said. "You don't have to be a country fan. It is truly a Christmas show."

Tickets are $25 for adults and $10 for children. They are available at Pharmasave in Minden, by calling 1-855-726-8896 or by visiting www.scottwoods.ca.

Fiddling phenom Scott Woods and his band will bring a dynamic Christmas show to Minden on Dec. 5. Woods, who started music lessons at age 4, earned the nickname the Flippin' Fiddler for his trademark running somersaults, which he completes while playing.

Somersaults aren't the only trick in Scott Woods's arsenal. The fiddler is also known to play while walking on a barrel.

Cooler temperatures are expected to remain until next week, when they should again rise to a melting point.

Winter is not here to stay, quite yet.

"It's a tease," Phillips said Monday. "It's a reminder to get your snow tires on, get your lawn furniture away."

The models used by Environment Canada are indicating that, on the whole, this winter should be less severe than last.

"What seems to be a safe forecast is that it's not going to be as bad as last year," Phillips said.

In terms of snowfall in Canada, the 2013/2014 was the second snowiest on record.

In terms of temperature, it was the eighth coldest in 67 years.

However, as Phillips pointed out, that's taking December, January and February into account.

If November and March are added to the equation, last winter was the coldest on record, with prolonged periods of cold where temperatures regularly delved into the minus 30s.

"They were no melting points," Phillips said. "It was long and boring and monotonous. There was no break at all."

The spring was also cold and wet, something Phillips said would not likely be the case for 2015.

Own it

ENJOY THE Canadian winter or it will enjoy you.

This phrase, or something close to it, came up in my Twitter feed the other day.

I can't recall the author and just now was unsuccessful in tracking down the tweet, so for that I apologize.

The point is, it resonated with me, so if the Tweeter was you, thank you.

It resonated with me because I don't like winter.

There. I said it . . . er . . . typed it, rather.

While the child version of me loved frolicking in the snow as much as the next kid, the adult manifestation of myself is much less amenable to the concept.

I don't do winter. I do patios and beaches and bonfires and boat rides.

When the snow starts to fall – as it did earlier this week – my inclination is to run inside. To grab a blanket and eat grilled cheese sandwiches by the fire until this thing blows over.

You know, five months from now.

A cold, wet spring followed by a tepid summer is almost enough to make me feel like Mother Nature is out to get me.

In fact, I'm starting to take it personally.

I knew I shouldn't have sent her that nasty, late-night email after that mid-April snowstorm.

Some solace may be taken in that one of the country's leading climatologists said earlier this week that the snow we are experiencing right now will not be the snow we are celebrating a white Christmas with.

It seems that winter is not here to stay. Yet.

But eventually, and in the not too distant future, it will show up, with all its stuff, like the ungrateful squatter that it is, and park itself for a few months.

Chad Ingram
Reporter

However, this winter, instead of just grabbing the blanket and stuffing comfort food into my gob until the robins come back, I've decided I'm going to make an effort to at least tolerate winter.

If not make the most of it, at least make something.

Enjoy the Canadian winter or it will enjoy you.

After all, if we must live in a country where it is dark, cold and snowy for a much too generous portion of the year, the Haliburton Highlands is not a bad place to do it.

There's certainly no shortage of things to do – snowshoeing, skiing of both the cross-country and downhill varieties, dogsledding, skating, curling, hockey, ice climbing and ice fishing.

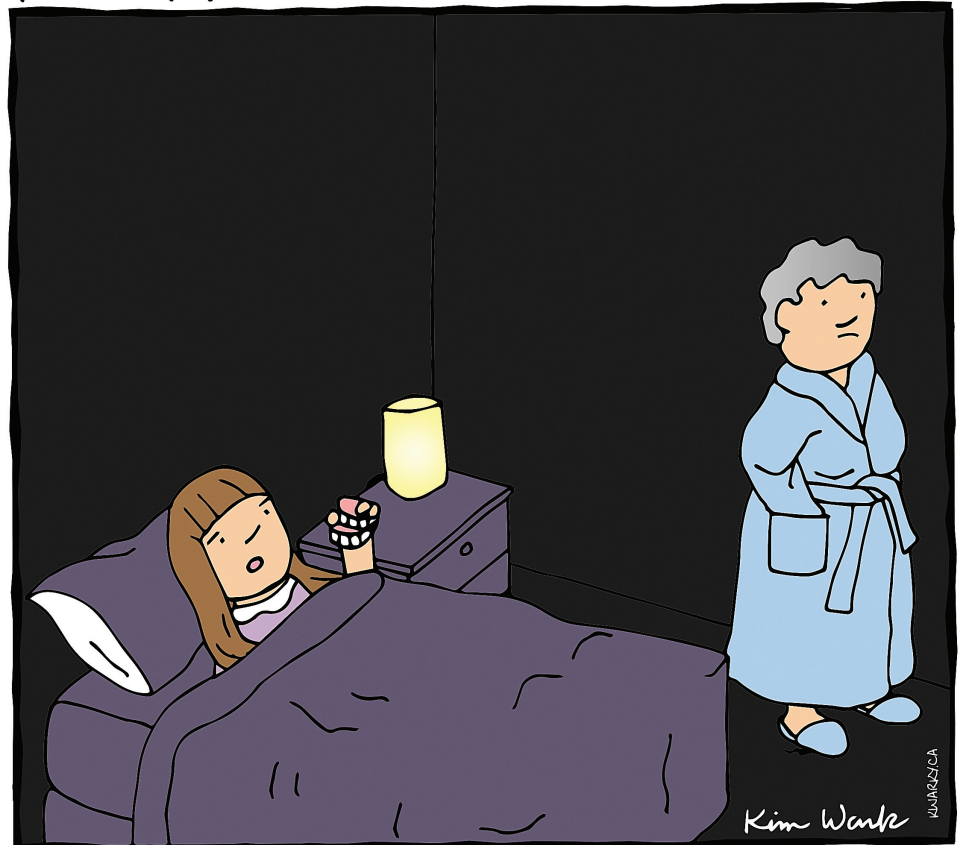

There are probably many activities I'm missing.

Winter, in its full form, may not quite be here yet.

But it will be soon.

Might as well own it.

KWARKY

"GRANDMA, MY TEETH ARE FOR THE TOOTH FAIRY!
AND I DON'T WANT YOUR DENTURES."

Lumberjacks beware

IN CASE you haven't heard, central Ontario might soon become the focal point of world fashion. In which case, Minden would be the new Milan and Bancroft the Paris of the west.

How can this be, you ask? What sort of evil could possibly create these conditions?

Well, it's mostly because fashion experts with nothing better to do are trying to create a creature called "the lumbersexual."

The lumbersexual is currently the label they are attaching to any urban man who sports a Duck Dynasty beard, a plaid shirt and a backpack. And if the fellow looks like he would use tools, given half a chance, so much the better.

Interestingly, around here, we just call a character like that neighbour.

This is why I fully expect fashion designers to be in our local coffee shops making sketches of the people I sit with in the very near future.

They'll likely be looking for trademark nuances that accompany the real thing – food in our beards immediately comes to mind.

I know they say that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery but, believe me, no good can come of this.

For one thing, if this trend catches on, plaid shirts, power tools, back packs, pickup trucks and work boot prices will surely rise, due to the high demand created by urban hipsters who are trying to jump on the bandwagon.

What bothers me most, however, is that this is merely the beginning of a slippery slope. I mean after the hipsters have had their fun pretending to be ironically manly, they'll probably want to take it a step further because – let's face it – being manly is a lot more fun than sipping lattes and looking mildly uninterested.

That means that the next trend might very well be anglersexual – a fad that will have them wearing waders, donning fishing vests and funny hats festooned with the finest hand-tied flies. Worse still, they will dispense fishing advice and stories that have no merit – so it will be hard to tell them apart from the rest of us.

That's why we need to stop them now because this lumbersexual trend takes hold.

Steve Galea
Beyond 35

Again, this would be of no great concern to me, if not for the fact that the anglersexual trend will likely drive up the price of a dozen minnows or worms because – as we anglers discovered long ago – there is no better fashion accessory than these.

The good news is we can quash the lumbersexual trend now before it gets out of hand. We can do this easily by asking any lumbersexual we see a few important questions that will make him realize we are onto him.

The question that immediately comes to mind is, "Can I buy you a regular cup of coffee?"

This will derail most hipsters who are trying to pass as rugged since the mere thought of sipping on anything but an unpronounceable latte variation will cause the lumbersexual to momentarily lose his cool and yell, "Heavens no!"

Follow this up by asking if he'd like to help stack a pile of firewood. That is sure to cause the average lumbersexual to tear the plaid shirt right off his back and hand it to you as he tries to figure out if there is an app to avoid this chore.

By the way, it shouldn't be too hard to find a lumbersexual in any crowd. He's the one with artisan bread in his Duck Dynasty beard.

Blue jay at my shoulder

I AM NAPPING peacefully in the arms of three mighty oaks when a screech from the bowels of Hell pierces the air and nearly sends me tumbling to the forest floor.

First, an explanation of why I am napping in a tree 12 feet above ground. It is the deer hunting season and the oaks cradle my hunting platform. And, napping during a deer watch is a privilege extended to individuals like me who have reached a certain stage in life.

At any rate, I look over my right shoulder to see a very upset bird standing on a branch and glaring at me. It is a blue jay, its head crest fully erect, black eyes burning with condemnation. It seems that I have trespassed on his favoured spot for collecting acorns.

There is snow on the ground, and more falling, so I ask him the obvious question:

"Why little bird are you here shrieking at me when you should be heading south?"

He shrieks again, then flies off.

Jim Poling Sr.
From Shaman's Rock

They are such strange birds, these jays. And noisy. The American writer Henry David Thoreau described the jay's voice as an "unrelenting steel-cold scream."

Blue jays have been shrieking at people since we were still in the ape stage. Evidence of the jay family has been found in fossils more than 25 million years old.

Their high-pitched calls are said to be warnings to other forest creatures that a predator is nearby. They do have a softer, more musical voice but reserve it for courting.

Not all blue jays fly south when winter arrives. Those who do usually don't go far - only a few hundred kilometres. It is a mystery why only some migrate and why they don't go all the way to guaranteed sun and warmth.

There are numerous little mysteries and oddities about blue jays. For instance, their feathers are not really blue. Scientists tell us that the blue is the result of light being distorted by a peculiar inner structure of the feathers. Apparently if you crush the feathers, the blue colour disappears. They certainly look blue to me, but we'll just have to take the scientists' word on that.

Another interesting note is that blue jays helped to create our great oak forests. They love acorns and often carry them away to distant hiding spots for later. Sometimes they forget where they put them and voila, another oak tree is born. I too forget where I put things but no one ever gives me that kind of credit.

Moulting blue jays will catch ants in their bills and place them beneath their wings. Some researchers believe secretions from ants help soothe skin irritations that result from moulting.

Blue jays are reputed thieves, possibly because they are known to steal and eat the young of other species. The reputation for thievery, however, is more applicable to the blue jay's northern cousin Weesageechak, the Cree name for the whiskey-jack or Grey Jay.

In far northern Ontario where I grew up the whiskey-jack is called the "camp robber" because it hangs around campsites, lumber camps or hunter kills looking for some niblet to steal. The Grey Jay is much quieter than the blue jay but not nearly as pretty. It has a washed out grey body and white and black head.

We are fortunate to live in the southern reaches of the Great White North where the blue jay prefers to live. There is nothing more cheering on a winter morning than to look out and see that stunning blue body standing on a shiny green balsam branch dusted with white snow.

That's a sight worth being wakened for.

Recognize young stars in community

Every community has young stars, and while they may not quite have celebrity status, they deserve to be in the spotlight for all they have accomplished. Who are they? They are our future leaders - Ontario's youth.

These individuals are working hard to make their community a better place by volunteering for various organizations, making donations, saving lives and maintaining top grade averages. They are everywhere - in your homes, at school, on the field and at church. If you know someone who deserves a large pat on the back, nominate them today for the Ontario Junior Citizen of the Year Awards.

Our newspaper strongly supports this program here in Haliburton County, because we support the growth of our community. We look forward to providing recognition for such outstanding young people who continue to be fine examples of leaders in our community. The awards program is co-coordinated by the Ontario Community Newspapers Association (OCNA), of which we are a member, and sponsored by TD Bank Group and the Insurance Bureau of Canada.

Any Ontario resident aged six to 17 (must be at least six years but no older than 17 years by Nov. 30, 2014) is eligible to be chosen a final recipient of this Award. Please help us by nominating an individual in one of five areas:

- A person involved in worthwhile community service
- A special young person contributing to their community while living with a physical or psychological limitation
- An individual who has performed an act of heroism in the past year
- Excellence in achievement, such as the arts or athletics
- Good kids who show a commitment to make life better for others and do more than is normally expected of someone their age

Up to 12 nominees will be chosen as the final recipients of the provincial award and will be invited to a special ceremony held in the spring of 2015 in Toronto.

Nominate a deserving young person today, and we will personally present them with a certificate of recognition and showcase their contributions in this newspaper. Help us pay tribute to our leaders of today and tomorrow.

Participate in child mental health survey

You've probably heard - one in five Ontario children/youth have a mental health issue.

Is that number still true? We don't know. That number came from the last Ontario Child Health Study, conducted in 1983. Thirty years ago the world was a very different place.

The largest and most comprehensive study on child and youth mental health that has ever been done in Ontario is now underway. The 2014 Ontario Child Health Study (2014 OCHS), conducted by Statistics Canada, will invite over 13,500 families with children and youth aged 4-17 years living in 180 communities to participate. In addition, more than 200 schools from these same communities will be asked to participate in the School Mental Health Surveys, conducted by McMaster University. This companion study will examine the link between schools and student mental health. The information gathered through both studies will provide a more complete overview of our children and youth than ever before.

"More and more children are born into social and economic disadvantage, which increases their risk for poor health and lowers their life chances. It is up to us to find strengths in families, neighbourhoods and schools that can offset these disadvantages and to challenge the health care system to better meet the needs of children and youth confronting mental health issues," said Dr. Michael Boyle, principle investigator and Canada research chair in the social determinants of child health.

To obtain an accurate picture of child and youth mental health in Ontario, our partner, Statistics Canada, has randomly selected families across Ontario. Letters were sent to these families at the beginning of October 2014 and, in the next couple of months, they will be contacted by Statistics Canada and invited to participate in the 2014 OCHS. For most families, participation involves a one-and-a-half to two hour home visit with an in-depth series of questions about mental and physical health, social relationships, home life, the cyber world and more.

Agreeing to participate in the 2014 Ontario Child Health Study will make a real difference in the lives of our children and youth. Results from the 1983 Study led federal and provincial governments to invest heavily in new child development initiatives such as the Ontario Early Years Centres. It's been 30 years since we examined child and youth mental health in Ontario. What should we be doing now to improve the mental health of our children and youth? It's time to look again. Please say yes if asked to participate.

ONTARIO JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR AWARDS

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

It's shaping up to be a sidesplitting season at the Highlands Summer Festival. The theatre company unveiled the 2015 festival lineup on Nov. 16 at McKeck's Tap and Grill in Haliburton and there's plenty of comedy on the menu.

Lend Me a Tenor, One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest and Nunsensations will be locally produced.

Lend Me a Tenor by Ken Ludwig is a farcical tale of mistaken identity that occurs when a temperamental tenor goes missing before his Cleveland, Ohio debut and the entrepreneur behind the show scrambles to find a replacement. "This is a comedy I've wanted to do," artistic director Scot Denton told the room. "We're going to do it well... it's got some challenges in it... and one of them is the set."

For the performance the stage is set up to look like two, side-by-side rooms.

One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest is the sanitarium-set story first penned as a novel by Ken Kesey that follows the antics of a self-admitted patient who attempts to liberate his fellow residents. The stage version was written by Dale Wasserman and varies from the famous film, which starred Jack Nicholson. "This play is powerful... lots of great parts in it," Denton said.

Nunsensations by Dan Goggin is the sequel to Nunsense, the locally produced version of which was incredibly well-received at the 2013 festival.

"This is the show where the nuns go to Vegas," Denton said.

Two other shows will round out the five-production lineup. Wingfield Lost and Found by Dan Needles stars Rod Beattie and is directed by Douglas Beattie and tells the tale of couple who find much more than water when they go looking for a new well.

Ralph and Lina is a romance that follows the journey of two Italian lovers amidst the backdrop of war.

Written by Michele Smith, it stars Dan Watson and Christina Serra. "It's all done by two actors on a bare stage," Denton explained.

This year's festival will again feature the Early Stage youth program. "One of the themes in Cuckoo's Nest is transformation, and I think we produce theatre which has the capacity to change other people, and ourselves," Denton said.

"Each year we've attempted to raise the bar and each year, I think, we've done that," festival president Jack Brezina told attendees as he thanked them for their work. "It's very much a collaborative effort, putting on theatre."

Casting is anticipated to be firmed up in January.

The festival is seeking volunteers to help with sets.

Formulating a framework with SPARC

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

Deciding what a network for the performing arts in rural communities might look like was the goal at the SPARC Network Summit, held Nov. 14 and 15 at the Bonnie View Inn.

The Symposium for Performing Arts in Rural Communities, heralded as the the first event of its kind, was held in Haliburton in April, drawing some 140 delegates from as far away as Scotland.

Last weekend's event brought together a couple dozen arts organizers from throughout the province with the goal of creating a framework for a network that would promote and grow the performing arts among small communities.

It was facilitated by consultant Inga Petri.

There are many existing organizations in the province that deal with the performing arts in some way, although Petri said there are still some gaps in terms of what's being offered.

"I'm really interested in those gaps," Petri said. "It's those gaps, at the end of the day, that SPARC might choose to take on."

One of the challenges of a new network will be avoiding redundancy, not replicating what is already out there.

In most cases, groups dealing with the performing arts require some kind of membership.

"All of them, I believe, are membership-based organizations," Petri said. "The first barrier to success becomes . . . you have to get members first."

Most arts organizations are largely operated by volunteers.

"The idea that we're all volunteer-run . . . is that sustainable?" Petri asked, pointing out that the arts is one of very few industries where people are expected to donate much of their time. "We would never imagine mining to work that way. We would never imagine forestry to work that way."

Attendees partook in a series of discussions and brainstorming activities on what type of network they would like to see, whether it be strategic partnerships, not-for-profit organizations, creating a program within an existing organization or creating a network of the virtual type.

Participants seemed to agree that a SPARC network should be grassroots, run from the bottom up to keep a strong base.

"The objective and mission of SPARC meets with our desire to create dynamic communities throughout Ontario," said Jean-Paul Gagnon, program manager for the Ontario Trillium Foundation, which was a funder of the summit.

Gagnon said whatever model was decided on as a result of the summit could be duplicated in other rural areas.

Feedback from the summit will be compiled by SPARC network co-ordinator Elisha Barlow.

Colour Party leading Santa Claus parade this Saturday

Legion br. 636

There's something very special happening downtown Minden this Saturday, the Santa Claus Parade!

Led by the colour party of the Minden Legion Branch 636, there will be floats and marchers and music and that most exciting old gentleman with the white beard.

There are lots of good viewing spots along Bobcaygeon Road, so come on out at 11:30 p.m. and welcome the unofficial start to the season.

The following Saturday, Nov. 29, you can shop at Minden Legion for unique Christmas gifts to treasure at the Christmas Arts and Crafts Sale.

Open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., you'll find many different vendors, artists, crafters and maybe even some Christmas baking.

There's still time for talented people to reserve a table to display their items for sale. Our previous sales have featured a wide variety - Christmas placemats and runners, quilts, knitting, stained glass, artwork, Christmas decorations, jewelry and much more.

If you are interested in renting one of the table spaces, just give the branch a call, 705-286-4541.

A five-foot table can be reserved for $15, with additional space for $5.

Our members are pretty wonderful volunteers for the community and for our branch.

Last Sunday afternoon, during a volunteer appreciation event, Minden Legion president Judy Flieger had an opportunity to say thanks for all their hard work.

We're very grateful to our generous suppliers and local merchants who donated the draw items, so that everyone had a great time.

It requires countless hours of work to keep our building operating and available for the many community groups which use our premises on a daily basis.

Our volunteers cook and serve meals for at least five lunchtimes and one supper, every week, every season. Maintenance, utilities and repairs all take funds which are raised primarily through volunteer efforts.

Then there is the administration of the branch and its commitment to the Legion and the wider community.

Some other examples are the poppy canvass to support needy veterans, ongoing financial support of the Minden food bank, bursaries and student awards.

All these require an extensive commitment from our wonderful volunteers.

Did you also know that the Colour Party members carry our flags to lead the Canada Day Parade, several cemetery Decoration Days, the Remembrance ceremony, the Santa Claus parade and other ceremonial duties?

The Royal Canadian Legion could not operate without the consistent commitment from our members. Thank you one and all.

Thank you for those who have volunteered to judge the work of ASES and home-schooled students submitted this week to the Branch 636 poster and literary remembrance competitions.

First, second and third place entries will receive a certificate and monetary award.

The first place entry at every age group and category will go on to compete against those from several other Branches at the end of the month.

There is a separate video competition for students from grade 7 to 12 with a Remembrance theme, which is not administered at the local branch level. For more information go to www.on.legion.ca.

Big weekend for Atom A Storm

It was a big weekend, with three games on tap. The RM Carpentry Atom A Highland Storm battled to a 2-2 tie with the Bancroft Jets. We got one from Phippen on a great effort and pass from Winder behind the net.

The second buried by Robinson with a great second effort to get his own rebound, after pass behind the net from Mash. But the results could have been much different if not for the stellar play of Maddock between the pipes.

In the next was a disappointing 7-3 loss to the Huntsville Otters, after the Storm jumped out to a lightning fast 3-1 lead. The first goal came on a rush by defenceman Glecoff, carrying the puck to behind the net and passed out front to Winder for the finish.

Winder's second came on another pass out front from behind the net. The third was a beautiful redirection into the top shelf by Phippen on a hard pass from the wing by Winder. Tough loss. But the Storm didn't let the previous day's events dampen their resolve for the South Muskoka Bears. From previous meetings, the Storm knew this would be a rough affair, but this one was a little more physical than earlier meetings.

Perhaps the Bears were seeking revenge after their last contest was won by the Storm in overtime. The Bears struck first, catching Maddock off guard with an off speed shot that just trickled past. The Storm responded with a top shelf sweetie from Phippen.

Again the Bears took the lead, but the Highlanders stormed back to tie it with another from Phippen. Next came a plethora of physical play, anomalous in Atom hockey. But the Storm prevailed with a final goal and hat trick from Phippen.

With two men in the sin bin during the last minutes of play, the Bears could not mount an effective comeback and the Storm took this one 3-2.

Midget B girls take on Eagles

The Minden Car Quest midget B girls travelled to Lakefield Saturday, Nov. 15, to take on the Ennismore Eagles after a two-week stint with no games.

The Storm worked hard to get into the flow of a game after having only practised the last two weeks by jumping out to an early 1-0 early first period lead with Kennndal Marsden's one-timer from the slot off a nice feed from Alicia McLean. Kelsey Maracle made it 2-0 with a deflection from a point pass from Jamie Little. Kennndal Marsden's snap shot and Erin Little's wrister both eluded the Ennismore tender to put the Storm up 4-0 midway through the second period. The Eagles capitalized on a turnover late in the second period to gain some momentum and break the shut out bid.

Erin Little rounded out the scoring in the 5-1 Storm win with a third period laser from the high slot that went high glove the beat the Eagle netminder.

On Sunday, Nov. 16, the Keene Wolverines travelled to Minden to play in an afternoon tilt in a battle for second place in our loop – with both teams having only lost once early in the season. Both teams worked hard trying to break the scoreless tally, carrying the 0-0 tie into the third period.

Late in the third, with both teams playing four-on-four being down a player in the penalty box, Alicia McLean broke free in the neutral zone and beat the Keene netminder going to her backhand and slipping the puck into the net. The Storm girls picked up four points on the weekend moving their record to 6-1-2. The Storm girls travel to Ennismore Tuesday night and then host the Cold Creek Comets at home in Minden, Sunday Nov. 23 at 2 p.m.

Keep up the focused team efforts girls, your hard work is showing good results.

Highland Storm Bantam A Tournament Champs

The Storm spent the weekend in Elmvale and attended the Brian English Memorial Tournament. It began on Friday with a 2-0 win against the Listowel Cyclones. The first period was scoreless with lots of back and forth action, both teams working hard to get on the scoreboard. It was midway through the second period when Flood aggressively pushed his way through the defense, a pass to Patterson-Smith and it was Manning that found the opening. That goal provided the edge Storm needed, and they kept on drilling the puck to the net. Next goal came with a pass from Manning, to Ryan Prentice to the stick of Turner with two minutes left and that ended the game. A great shut out for Parker Smolen and an excellent start to the weekend for the Storm.

Next, was another 6-0 shut out win for the Storm team against the Flesherton Golden Hawks. It was a bit of a slow start that picked up half way through the first period when the Storm got into gear. Most of the game took place in the Hawks end with shot after shot on goal. The Patterson-Smith line started the goals, controlled the play and the puck with some perfect drop passes and countless shots. Hats off to Flood, who got three goals in the game, one in each period, along with an assist. Patterson-Smith got a goal and Manning picked up a couple of assists. The captain Cooper did his magic, slipped by the defence and easily saw the opening for a goal, he also managed two assists in the game. Other assists going to Turner, O'Neill and Walker. The Storm continued to out-play the Hawks, both offensively and defensively. With less than a minute in the game, Lucas Haedicke deked through the defence, and top cornered the puck ending the game 6-0.

The Storm met with the Kawartha Coyotes and it proved to be an exciting game from the start that ended in a 3-3 tie. The fast paced first period was scoreless. The well-matched teams kept the crowd at the edge of their seats. It was almost half way through the second period when Flood determinedly drove his way through the Coyotes to the net and scored, assisted by Garbutt and Patterson-Smith. With that same dogged attitude, Cooper pushed hard, manoeuvred his way to the net and found the opening for the second goal. The Coyotes tied the game by the end of the second, scoring both goals on a power play. The Storm took the lead when a pass from Manning went to Patterson-Smith and he snapped it in. With minutes left in the game, Coyotes pulled their goalie in an attempt to tie, which was exactly the result, ending it 3-3.

The Storm team took the semi-final game 4-2 against the Kawartha Coyotes early on Sunday. The first period was a bit sluggish for both teams. The Storm got on the scoreboard first in the second period with a shot by Patterson-Smith, assisted by Manning. The Coyotes then tied it up with a goal. Storm answered back with a hard pass from Turner to Flood, his keen eye saw the opening for the goal ending the second period 2-1. The Storm kept the pressure on in the third period. The next goal was a lucky pass that found Flood alone in front of the net. It was a hard shot by Jacob Haedicke from the point that was deflected in by Cooper, making it 4-1 halfway through the third.

The Coyotes pulled their goalie nearing the end of the third, trying hard to score, which they did, but it was not enough. The clock ticked down ending the game and sending the Storm to the finals.

The Storm won the final game 6-2 against the Listowel Cyclones. The Storm may have been a bit over confident, on their heels at the start and were shocked when the Cyclones took off with a 2-0 lead in the first period.

They picked up the pace late in the second when Schmidt relentlessly pushed his way through to the net creating the opportunity by passing it back to Turner, whose shot gave the rebound to Dollo for the first goal.

Cooper's line dug in and worked hard for the next five goals. It started with aggressively keeping the puck in the Coyotes end, a quick pass from Lucas Haedicke found the stick of Cooper, and he saw the opening, making it a tie game.

Next, the faceoff was won by Cooper, who pulled it back to Garbutt, his hard shot gave a nice rebound to Devyn Prentice who tapped it in, Storm took the lead 3-2. Shortly after, Devyn Prentice rushed in, passed it over the Lucas Haedicke who managed a sweet backhand over the goalie, now 4-2 for the Storm.

That unstoppable line continued to push, Cooper picked up a pass by Garbutt, rushed in with a hard shot, 5-2. Coy-

SNOW REMOVAL OPERATIONS

During the snow removal season, please be mindful of the following:

No person shall park or stand a vehicle on a highway in such a manner as to interfere with the movement of traffic or the clearing of snow from the highway (Highway Traffic Act, RSO, 1990, c. H.8). A Police Constable, County or Municipal appointed By-Law Officer may have the vehicle removed from the roadway and stored at the owner's expense.

No person shall deposit snow or ice on a roadway without permission in writing to do so from the Ministry or the road authority responsible for maintenance of the road (Highway Traffic Act, RSO, 1990, c. H.8).

Please be sure to keep the snow back away from the roadway when clearing your driveway, entrance and mail box. This is to avoid creating a hazard for the travelling public.

Cooperation in these matters is appreciated to ensure the safety of others and efficient winter maintenance of County and Municipal Roads.

HCPL's DVD of the Month: Stories We Tell

In this intensely personal documentary, Sarah Polley, actor, director and Member of the Order of Canada, explores the often contradictory memories that families form around secrets. In Stories We Tell, Polley interviews her own family, excavating the layers of narratives that her brothers, sisters, family members, and friends have formed around the relationship between her mother and her father. Dressed with readings from her father's memoirs, and Super-8 footage re-enacting historical events from her childhood, we watch as Polley delicately teases out a family secret that directly impacts her own identity.

Written and directed by Sarah Polley, and produced by the National Film Board of Canada,

Stories We Tell is not only a personal story of a public family told in her own words and on her own terms, but a vignette of the mixed family of the 1970s. Stories We Tell was featured in 2013 at the Haliburton International Film Festival, and is available to reserve at the Haliburton County Public Library.

Storm win against Listowel Cyclones

otes tried to hold the Storm back but ended up in the penalty box.

Last goal was on a power play as the Cooper line dominated, passes and shots, with Prentice, Haedicke and Cooper in front of the net, game ended 6-2.

Great saves by goalies Josh Bellefleur and Parker Smolen. Thanks to all the boys for a fun-filled weekend of hockey.

The Highland Storm Bantam A team is proudly sponsored by Smolen Dentistry. Hockey update submitted by Suzanne Haedicke

The Bantam A Storm had a fun-filled weekend of hockey taking on teams from around Ontario.

Highland Storm novices battle Huntsville

The Canadian Tire Novices had a busy weekend with two away games.

Saturday took them to Huntsville to play the Otters. They battled hard but need up with 5-3 lose.

Sunday took them to Gravenhurst to play the South Muskoka Bears.

Storm knew that this was going to be a tough game because they have only been able to tie this team and they wanted a win.

They came out fast and determined to take lead but the Bears managed to get the first one. Minutes later Storm answered back to tie it up.

It went back and forth with a goal for the Bears and then one for Storm until we were tied again at three apiece. Storm battled hard and had a couple of close ones to try and take the lead.

Finally they got a break and put one into the net giving them a 4-3 lead. With time still left on the clock they knew they had to keep the Bears from scoring.

The Bears tried everything but couldn't get the puck into the net. Storm walked away with a well deserved win.

Come out this weekend and cheer on the Canadian Tire novices at there home tournament in Haliburton.

Miracles of Velcro

Patti Fleury
Around the Town

705-488-2938
brucefleury1@hotmail.com

Here at the old farmhouse the winter boots were reluctantly resurrected from the closet. Purchased last season the only good thing about them is their Velcro fasteners. Have you ever had an idea which later became a market miracle for someone else? I wish Velcro had been mine. Invented in 1948 and introduced commercially in the late '50s by a Swiss engineer named George de Mestral after his experience with burrs the name is a combination of two French words "velours" (velvet) and "crochet" (hook). The two surfaces when pressed together link tiny hooks and loops and when separated make a distinctive ripping sound. Velcro has not only been a household word but featured in movies and television. In the fictional universe of Star Trek Velcro, albeit indirectly invented by the Vulcans, is recovered from a crashed Vulcan starship and a character named Mestral appears in that episode titled Carbon Creek. Mention of it is also made in the comic strip Peanuts back in 1988 and later in the sitcom Seinfeld episode "The Wallet" when George's father states his intense dislike of its ripping sound. Well folks along with the boots came out the winter underwear and next week's column will provide an answer to that burning question: why are long-johns called that? Could it possibly be linked to pirate lore? Stay tuned.
